CRIES OF "GOD BLESS HIM" RING OUT AS ENGLISH POPULACE BACKS KING; RULER SAID TO BE ENJOYING MORE PEACE OF MIND

King Edward's Decision Made to Let Cabinet and Parliament Deal With Crisis to Best of Their Ability; Queen Mary Remains in Seclusion; Mrs. Simpson is Fatigued Over Events of Recent Weeks and Seeks Rest and Quiet.

By International News Service

SUNNINGDALE, England, Dec. 7.—With his decision made and apparently content to let the cabinet and Parliament deal with the crisis to the best of their ability, King Edward resumed his usual daily constitutional walk in the secluded grounds of Fort Belvedere, today.

The monarch was believed awaiting developments, whatever they may be, and was described as enjoying more peace of mind today than he has had in more than a week.

LONDON, England, Dec. 7.—Queen Mary continued in seclusion at Marlborough House today. The Princess Royal remained with her throughout the morning.

CANNES, France, Dec. 7.—Still exhausted by her wild automobile dash across France, Mrs. Wallis Simpson, rested until a late hour today, but found time to make a telephone call to London for the latest developments in the crisis over her romance with King Edward.

Whether she spoke to the monarch himself, could not be learned, but she received news of the British government's decision to give the King more time to make a final decision and of the rising tide of popular sentiment in her behalf.

ASSIGN PARTS FOR GIRL SCOUT PLAY

Lone Star Troop at Andalusia Conducts "Try-Outs" For Christmas Production

TO BE GIVEN DEC. 29TH

ANDALUSIA, Dec. 7.—As a result of try-outs for a Christmas play, "Home for the Holidays," 23 parts have been assigned to members of the Lone Star Troop of girl scouts. A few remaining parts will be assigned later this week.

Work on the production, which will be presented at the Log Cabin in Andalusia on December 29th, at 8 p. m., will begin immediately.

Those who already have parts in the comedy include: ticket agent, Gloria Freas; Bill, the porter, Lois Lange; train caller, Jeanne Stackhouse; aged man, Betty Rahn; old maid, Peggy Armstrong; bachelor, Marie Still; negro woman, Jane Pedrick; Mimi, her niece, Doris Hibbs; bride, Dolly Ferguson; groom, Beatrice Fries; deaf and dumb women, Muriel Hornickel and Barbara Engle; woman with a child, Frances Stuhltrager and Peggy States; mother and three children, Pauline Fries, Ada Pickersgill, Clara Fries, Helen Still; young lady, Gladys Cragg; boys with Christmas trees, Mary Reichert and Elizabeth Anderson; college girls, Margaret Pickersgill and Ethel Jullif.

Winners in the contest for the sale of Christmas cards were announced at the recent meeting. Lois Lange was first, Marie Still, second, and Muriel Hornickel, third. These three girls will each receive a year's subscription to the American Girl Magazine.

Names for the exchange of Christmas gifts were drawn. These presents will be exchanged on December 22 when the Troop holds its annual Christmas party.

Those present at the meeting included: Gladys Cragg, Pauline Fries, Doris Hibbs, Dorothy Ferguson, Elizabeth Rahn, Elizabeth Anderson, Clara Fries, Muriel Hornickel, Barbara Engle, Ethel Jullif, Helen Still, Peggy Armstrong, Lois Lange, Marie Still, Gloria Freas, Margaret Pickersgill and Ada Pickersgill.

Furman Club Moves Into Larger Quarters

The "Furmans" of Bristol have recently taken newer and larger quarters on the highway just below Mill street. Extensive renovation has been undertaken.

The club, composed of many local young men, has been in existence in Bristol for the past five years. During that time it has sponsored members engaged in several fields of athletic activity, being directly responsible for the development of some exceptional talent in the local sports circle.

With the acquisition of new quarters it is desired that the members be provided with social contacts and entertainment which naturally result from this form of association.

Plans for a basketball team to be entered in one of the local leagues and the formation of a table tennis league for Bristol, are being discussed by the members at this time.

Other organizations having any suggestions for a table tennis league are invited to contact a member of the Furman Club.

In Line for British Throne

This interesting portrait shows Albert, the Duke of York, who may rule England as King Albert I if King Edward VIII abdicates in the present crisis.

A thorough check-up of all local physicians, confirmed that the stranger who called at the villa last night was not a neighborhood doctor, and reports that Mrs. Simpson is ill were apparently disposed of.

It was obvious, however, that the strain of recent weeks and the ordeal of her motor trip, greatly fatigued Mrs. Simpson, and she was carrying out her own express determination to have utter "rest and quiet," until the King has made his decision.

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 7.—King Edward will never act contrary to the constitution of Great Britain, Winston Churchill, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, told a cheering group today.

Cries of "God bless him" rang out when a toast to the King was proposed by Churchill. "At this moment," he said, "sympathies of every man and woman in England and in friendly nations of Europe will go out to our sovereign, who is under most grievous strain, both public and private."

"Having known His Majesty since a child, I can tell you you may be assured that never, either in letter or spirit, will he be found to act contrary to the British constitution."

LONDON, Dec. 7.—(INS)—The voice of his people today saved King Edward from immediate abdication from his throne to carry out his intention of marrying Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson.

Yielding to popular clamor, Edward's opposing ministers virtually apologized for their original pressure on the monarch for a quick decision in his dilemma between his love for Mrs. Simpson and his "duty" to the British Empire. They have given him as much time as he desires to decide whether to give up Mrs. Simpson or his throne.

ANCIENT YARDLEY MILLS ARE TO OPERATE AGAIN

Will Once More Grind Flour for Use of Residents of This County

OPERATING SINCE 1769

YARDLEY, Dec. 5.—With termination of work for a time after operating almost continually since 1769, the Yardley Mills will once more grind out flour, if plans of the operators reach fruition.

When Thomas Yardley established a ferry across the Delaware in the days of Penn and the Quaker settlers he established the opportunity for a trading center, and the old stone grist mill and saw-mill which he erected became the center of a community known as Yardleyville.

Since 1769 the mill has remained in the hands of the descendants of Thomas Yardley and during this period of more than one hundred and fifty years has ground the grains grown on the surrounding farms.

In 1901 the mill was burned. It was rebuilt and enlarged by the Yardley Mills Co., which was organized by descendants of the Yardleys. The Yardley Mills Co., which was conducted by T. S. Cadwallader for many years, closed on August 8 of this year, and is in process of liquidation.

J. A. Cadwallader, a son of T. S. Cadwallader, purchased the property in September and continued the business under the name of the miller, Harry Harle, who had been associated with his father for more than thirty years. Mr. Harle will continue in active management of the mill and "Gus" Cadwallader will take charge of the outside contacts.

The disastrous flood in March which washed out the canal brought the mill to a standstill. For many years the mill had drawn its water-power from the canal and the breaks in that waterway were serious. By the time the necessary repairs were made the drought and low water made operation of the mill impossible. It continued to stay idle while the wheat crop was harvested and sold. Steps are now being taken to recondition the mill and it is hoped to be operating again by the first of 1937.

In the meantime Mr. Cadwallader is directing his efforts to the custom grinding and mixing which the mill is equipped to do. The price of grist work has been cut in half. A full line of concentrates and ingredients is carried in stock for mixing formulas for feeders.

Before the 1937 crops move Mr. Cadwallader expects to have a fully established market for all farm products raised in this section.

PLANS FOR H. S. COMEDY ARE ABOUT COMPLETED

"Growing Pains" Ready For Presentation on Thursday and Friday Nights

CAST CO-OPERATES

By Frances Shelley, School Scribe

Plans for that comedy of adolescence, "Growing Pains," are about completed, and the play will be ready for presentation Thursday and Friday nights in the high school auditorium.

The cast has been co-operating extremely well, practicing every evening under the direction of Miss Hewitt and Mr. Burris. Each member of the cast is exceptionally well fitted for his part, and both cast and coaches feel as though the play will be a grand success.

The cast is composed of: Jack Spencer, as George McIntyre; Ruth Jefferies as Terry McIntyre; Doris Bair as Mrs. McIntyre; Chester Bair as Professor McIntyre; Dutch, Peter Peters; Brian, Francis O'Boyle; Betty Hamme as Prudence Darling; Frances Shelley as Patty Lorimer; Omar, Roy Hatcher; Mrs. Patterson, Mary Bramly; Elsie Patterson, Cornelia Traas; Hall, David Hetherington; Jane, Mary Eckert; Miriam, Alice Kwasno; Pete, Charles Hughes; traffic officer, Carmen Migonni; Sophie, Rose Vleth; Vivian, Sara Mae Bassett; Dot, Jean Rosser; Betty, Anna Hoffman; Joe, James Van Zant.

The stage crew, under the direction of Mr. Gillard, has been working diligently in order to produce the very beautiful and unusual scenery required by "Growing Pains." This committee is composed of George Monus, stage manager; Paul Vandegrift, assistant stage manager; Whitely McBride, assistant lighting manager; Wilbur VanLenten, W. Downing, W. Buck, W. Albright, Jack Healey, J. Melideo, E. Budzyko and J. Pica.

The student patrol, consisting of Barbara Lynch, Clifford Hagerman, Ruth Richardson, Julia Morganti and Daniel Halpin, will be in charge of ushering.

VATICAN CIRCLES GRAVELY CONCERNED OVER THE CONDITION OF POPE PIUS; PHYSICIANS ARE AT HIS SIDE DAY AND NIGHT; PONTIFF SAID TO BE WEAKER

By Frank Gervasi
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 7.—(INS)—Vatican circles were gravely concerned regarding the condition of Pope Pius today after it was authoritatively reported the Pontiff, suffering from asthma and uremic poisoning which has partially paralyzed his leg, was weaker.

Father Agostino Gemelli, a physician and old friend of the Pope, is staying at the side of the ill Pontiff night and day. Professor Aminto Milani, the 79-year-old Pope's personal physician, also is making frequent visits to the Pontiff's chamber.

The usual press channels issued optimistic statements about the Pope's condition, but in sharp contrast to these communications was the sombre

BANK ROBBERS GET JAIL TERMS AND FINES FOR TWO JOBS

Wilbur Rae Creveling Given Two to Four Year-Term In Prison

MADE ATTEMPT HERE

Thomas Patrick Culliney Gets 3½ to Seven Years in State "Pen"

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 7.—Five years ago, Wilbur Rae Creveling, 26-year-old bank bandit, and Thomas Patrick Culliney, 24, bank robber, began an escapade of hold-ups which included service stations and culminated in the hold-up of the Chalfont National Bank and an attempted hold-up of the Farmers National Bank, Bristol.

Friday the two youths, who grew up in the same neighborhood in Philadelphia, less than two blocks apart, stood before President Judge Hiram H. Keller and heard themselves sentenced to the Eastern State Penitentiary.

Deliberating less than five minutes, a jury on Friday convicted Thomas Patrick Culliney, after two partners-in-crime, Creveling and Bates, testified he was with them, of holding up the Chalfont National Bank and stealing almost $3000 and attempting to do the same in the Bristol bank.

Culliney, who stoutly, almost sullenly insisted on his innocence, with a know-nothing-about-it attitude of either of the bank hold-ups, was sentenced by President Judge Keller to pay a fine of $1, the costs of prosecution and serve not less than three and one-half years nor more than seven in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

His boyhood friend and fellow-gangster, Wilbur Rae Creveling, who pleaded guilty to robbing the bank, was sentenced by President Judge Keller to pay the costs of prosecution, a fine of $1 and serve not less than two years nor more than four years in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

After serving his time for the Bucks county bank hold-up, Creveling will be taken to New Jersey, where he is wanted in Camden county pending a charge against him there.

To Creveling, the Court said: "It is to your credit that you turned your back to your past and have reformed. But because of the gravity and magnitude of your crime I cannot suspend sentence."

Letters of commendation from a prison chaplain as well as other penal authorities revealed that Creveling was a model prisoner.

Through Creveling's version of the crimes, District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn has been able to clear up the notorious Chalfont and attempted Bristol bank robberies.

Insistent that he was not a member of the hold-up parties which visited the Bucks county banks, Culliney was reprimanded by the Court. "I am sorry to say you have not impressed the Court favorably," said Judge Keller. "It's about time that you realized your obligation to society." Culliney served three years and nine months on a bandit charge in New Jersey before being brought to trial here.

John Culliney, plasterer, speaking with a broad Irish brogue, told plaintively of the days when his son was a first-class boy until he fell in with bad companions. "My candid opinion is that my boy, who was too much influenced by these bad friends, was charged with dope when he did these awful crimes."

Mrs. Margaret Creveling, Kensington widow, mother of Wilbur Rae Creveling, in her recollection of her son before his breaking into crime, described him as having the supper ready for her when she came home from work, aiding in washing the dishes and going to Sunday school and church.

"His father died when he was nine years old and I had to go out to work. I never dreamed anything like this was going on. I never saw him with any of these bad companions at our home," she said.

Mrs. Mildred Gardner, of Fox Chase, described her brother as always en-

SCOUTS AND SCOUTERS MEET AT DOYLESTOWN

Judge Keller Greets the Men and Tells Them They Are Leaders of Youth

MR. SEAMANS LECTURES

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 7.—"Neither storm nor ice deterred them from the object of their quest" was said of the Knights of Old, and it was true of the Cubbers, Scouters, and Seascouters that gathered Sunday, at Scouting Headquarters, for the Elements of Leadership of their respective branches of boy work.

Judge Hiram H. Keller greeted the men with the thought, "You are leaders of youth. It is a serious responsibility. Much depends on the work done by each of you. Scouting is one of the most effective means of keeping youth interested in worthwhile projects with a real code of living—Your Scout Oath and Law."

During the week-end, the Council has entertained, C. Walter Seamans, the Assistant National Director of Cubbing. Mr. Seamans lectured to all of the groups on the subject of "Increasing membership." "Tradition and rules of the sea" was his address to Skippers and Mates. Most of his time was with the Cub leaders and assistants. He served as technical advisor.

ARMY AVIATOR MEETS DEATH ON ERRAND OF MERCY

Luke Christopher, Former Resident Here, Dies of Crash Injuries

WAS TEST PILOT HERE

Flier On Coast Guard Duty Was Enroute to Hospital With Tanker Patient

By International News Service

CAPE MAY, N. J., Dec. 7.—A military funeral was planned today for Lieutenant Luke Christopher, of the U. S. Coast Guard Air Base here, who was killed while flying an ill seaman to shore in an ambulance plane. The accident occurred, Saturday evening, when Christopher's amphibian plane crashed in Assateague Harbor, Va., in removing the seaman, stricken with appendicitis from the tanker, "Charles G. Black," at sea. He was to take the ill man to a hospital in Norfolk, Va.

Christopher got off to a good start with the plane, but something went wrong as the machine climbed for altitude, and it crashed. The flier died of internal injuries while enroute to a hospital. The seaman and two other members of the plane crew were seriously injured. They were removed to a Salisbury, Md., hospital.

Christopher, who was attached to the Cape May Coast Guard Air Base, for the past five years, was 41, and held the commission of Major in the Army Reserve Corps during the World War. He was secretary of the National Air Races, and was on the Advisory Committee of Aeronautics. When the San Diego, California, station was established, Lieutenant Christopher was placed in command, later being moved to Cape May.

Lt. Christopher is survived by his wife, Berthel Whitehouse Christopher, Cape May; and a son, Glenn, 13, who is attending a school in Texas. The funeral service will be held tomorrow in Washington, D. C.

Lt. Christopher, who had been flying planes for 19 years, was well-known in Bristol, being for some time connected with the Keystone Aircraft Corporation here, as test pilot. Day after day Bristolians would watch as the seasoned pilot put his crafts through paces here, accomplishing many difficult maneuvers in his test work.

Bristol Methodist Church Scene of Nuptial Ceremony

Miss Rose D'Amico, daughter of Mrs. Charles Chicone, 340 Dorrance street, and Hugo Piccari, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Piccari, 389 Pond street, were united in marriage Sunday afternoon in Bristol M. E. Church. The ceremony took place at two o'clock, with the Rev. Norman L. Davidson officiating.

Miss Emma Piccari, sister of the groom, and Girard Terlingo, Harrison, N. J., cousin of the groom, attended the couple.

The bride was gowned in white satin, fashioned on princess lines, with high cut neckline and standing collar, long full sleeves and the skirt ending in a train. The bridal veil of tulle, edged with lace, was attached to a lace headpiece trimmed with a crown of pearls and orange-blossoms. She wore white satin slippers and carried calla lilies.

Miss Piccari was attractive in a gown of apple green transparent velvet, made on form-fitting lines. The bodice front and back was shirred at the high-cut neckline and finished with a high-standing collar. The long skirt had a short train. Her slippers were satin, and she wore a velvet turban trimmed with maline, and a shoulder length veil the tone of her gown. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

A reception was held in Beneficial Hall. Refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Piccari, who left last evening for New York City, will reside at 333 Washington street.

A JANUARY INAUGURAL

Although President Roosevelt's second inaugural is six weeks away, authorities in Washington are already beginning to make their plans for the event. And strange as it may seem, they are planning for an outdoor affair in the middle of January. And that seems rather silly, for January is January even though it be a January in Washington. Weather bureau records show an average January 20th temperature of 33 degrees in the capital city. That is just one point above freezing and does not offer temptation for sitting for hours on street-side stands or standing for the same number of hours on capitol grounds. Incidentally there have been January 20ths in Washington when the thermometer went to quite uncomfortable depths, one, indeed, when it went to nine above zero.

So it would seem as though on the basis of these records common sense calls for an indoors inauguration ceremony. In these days of microphones and loud speakers and radios and all that sort of thing, it is hardly necessary for crowds to gather to hear the President make his inaugural speech. As for the remainder of the ceremony, it is all very democratic and very simple. Even the parade fails to have sufficient character and coloring to warrant long-time exposure of either participants or sightseers.

However, tradition is tradition, and tradition calls for a ceremony on the east portico of the capitol, and so they are making plans to have it there, with the proviso, however, that if the weather should be very severe it will be moved inside. That was done in the year that Taft was inaugurated when a March blizzard raged through Washington streets.

NO LONGER HERETICAL

Only recently President Edward Charles Elliott of Purdue University gathered a gathering of officials of New York State colleges that "American colleges must abandon their objective of higher education for all persons." Inasmuch as it is only a comparatively short time ago that the cry was for a college education for everybody who thinks he wants it, the sort of thing that President Elliott said seemed almost heretical.

But even college authorities learn from experience. And some years of experience have convinced many educational leaders that the period spent at college is a period of waste for many. What has come to be realized out of the expansion of college training is that the university is primarily beneficial only to those who have a definite and serious purpose, those who are glad to concentrate on the work of study and who look upon the fun of campus parades as an incidental. Out of that experience, too, has come the knowledge that not every young person who thinks he wants a college training is qualified to profit by it. Perhaps that is what Dr. Elliott had in mind when he spoke of the necessity of "development of first ability if American democracy is to lead the world."

It is just as well that educationalists have come to the conclusion that while the college offers much to many it also offers more than many are able to take.

What the Spaniards must look out for now is losing Spain. After all, the duPonts lost Delaware.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, June 3, 1875. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

On Monday morning, a son of Anthony Boak, who resides between Bristol and Emile, was struck by a train while crossing the railroad track and fatally injured. The circumstances are as follows: Mr. Boak was driving a loaded wagon, to which two mules were attached and a horse as leader. Upon coming to the railroad track, Mr. Boak stopped his team, cut out of the wagon and looked up and down the track to see if there were any passing trains in sight. The way appearing clear, he returned to the wagon, and told his boy, who was seated on the horse, to go ahead. Just as the horse stepped on the track a train at full speed struck the animal, carrying it about 30 feet before it struck the ground, and in some unaccountable manner the boy was forced under the cow-catcher of the locomotive. The train was stopped at the canal bridge, and after some search the boy was found in the position named. He was taken to Cloason's hotel, and medical assistance was immediately summoned, but his injuries were such that he died in the afternoon.

A Boston firm have just finished for C. W. and J. Peirce a complete arrangement for flooding the mill with water in case of fire. It consists of a four-inch main pipe, connecting with a steam pump, which has the capacity of throwing 1,000 gallons of water per minute; from this pipe there are branches running to all parts of the mill, and in each room there are from four to 14 sprinklers. The water is turned on and off by means of stop-cocks at the main pipe, each stop-cock being marked with the name of the room with which it connects. It is unquestionably a very efficient protection from fire.

Some Bristolians feed from eight to 10 tramps per day. If they would require an hour or so work from each for every meal furnished, they would not be so apt to give to the undeserving.

The eighth annual commencement of Bristol Boarding School will take place on Thursday, June 17th, in the new school building on Cedar street. The exercises will begin at 3 1/2 o'clock p. m.

The ordinance of Christian baptism will be administered by Rev. Everett H. Plummer on next Sabbath afternoon at three o'clock p. m., at Cold Spring Farm, near the toll gate below Tullytown, to which the public are invited.

MEMORIAL DAY—The usual ceremony of decorating the soldiers' graves was duly observed on Saturday last. There was no show or parade, but a few children having brought their flowers to the public school house on Wood street, proceeded in line to the Episcopal grave-yard about 8:30 a. m. They were accompanied by Miss Bailey.

"LOVE'S LITANY" by Hazel Livingston

SYNOPSIS

Christine Cooper, 17 and lovely, is the daughter of the rich and eccentric Adolphus Cooper, who made his money in the Klondike, never speaks of the past and hates cities. While he dreams of the great things he will do for Christine by and by, she becomes secretly engaged to a childhood sweetheart, Gene Dubois, who promptly breaks her heart by bidding her to speak of their love to anyone. He goes to the city without bidding Christine goodbye. Crushed at first by Gene's seeming desertion of her, Christine feels better when she receives a letter and sentimental poem from him. Aunt Nettie, Adolphus' second wife and Christine's late mother's sister, returns from a trip with her daughters, Isabelle and Adele. Christine does not care for Aunt Nettie but tries to hide her feelings. As to the girls, she does not pretend to like them nor they her. The summer passes with Gene's letters growing further and further apart. Gene told her he was studying nights and Christine tried to convince herself that she was glad he didn't write for it meant he was working for their future. In Honolulu, Adele met young Dr. Latham. Shortly after their return, Aunt Nettie suddenly developed a sinus condition. At her suggestion, Adolphus decides to close the old house and move to Piedmont. Christine becomes listless and her father, not knowing about Gene, worries about her. Thinking she needs a change, he sends her to a fashionable school in the city. Christine goes without a word, but her small world crumbles. Shortly after, Adolphus is stricken with pneumonia. Dr. Latham sends for Christine. The young doctor's and her concern for her father, form a strong bond of understanding and friendship. Adolphus dies without making a will. Christine, broken-hearted, ends for Gene.

CHAPTER XI

These were terrible days. Only the doctor, Donald Latham, had helped her get through them.

For Gene hadn't been able to come. He had a new job, and he'd lost it if he took time off now. He could only send his love and sympathy, and promise to come on Friday, his day off.

And Friday was the day after the funeral.

It was only the promise of seeing him on Friday, that got her through that last day without screaming, going completely to pieces. The solemn music, the pompous ushers, the avalanche of flowers, the words of the clergyman who acted as if he were on the closest of terms with Dad and God, and certainly had never had even a speaking acquaintance with Dad.

Aunt Nettie sobbed softly under her black widow's veil, and Adele and Isabelle cried a little, too. It seemed to Christine that hers was the only dry eye there. She had lost her father, she was desperately afraid of facing the future without him. . . . the future that she hadn't quite dared to think about. . . . but she had no tears.

Twice during the services Aunt Nettie looked at her reproachfully, and Christine knew that her conduct wasn't just right. She couldn't help it, though—she couldn't cry.

But after the funeral was over and they came back to the big white house on the knoll in Piedmont, Aunt Nettie ordered cinnamon toast and tea sent into the sun-room, and after she was rid of her black crepe, and her plump body was relaxed in a well pink tea-gown, with cushions behind her and the tea table in front of her, she said:

"Now, we've all been through a very sad experience, and we've had a very, very dear one. But we all know that he wouldn't want us to—" impose a period of mourning on three young girls, with all their lives to live, and—uh—gentlemen friends, and—"

"Then if it's all over, please excuse me. Lacking a gentleman friend, I'll just go back to my book. And, mother, while we're in the midst of one of our little heart-to-heart talks, may I ask that you stop referring to ME as a young girl? It just makes us ridiculous!"

Out came Nettie's handkerchief. She bowed her head.

With a little cry Adele was on her knees, her arm around her mother's waist, "Poor little mother! Is, you make me SICK! Picking on her, on a day like this! Don't cry, dear—here—have a cake. Is didn't mean it, sugarplum!"

After the funeral was over, they came back to the big, white house on the knoll.

"Sorry," Isabelle said softly. Nettie wiped her eyes and accepted the tiny frosted cake that Adele held out to her coaxingly. The sisters exchanged hostile glances.

"If I could just TELL you how I loath being called a young girl—at my age!—and being picked, and prodded, and patted, and advised! I'm going to rent a studio someplace, that's all. I've got to be alone sometimes. Certainly there's no chance in this house."

"Studio!"

"With a 14-room house, the loveliest place I could find. Your very own suite—I'm sure that very few young girls—"

"MOTHER! If you could see how you're just CHOKING me, by all this! Don't you see that I—Oh, if you'd just really listen once, instead of thinking your own way and looking at me as if I was the only one who was ever wrong, just because I don't think the same as you do!"

"Christie, dear, will you tell Rose I'd like some more hot water?"

And so she escaped.

Upstairs in her room the silence was almost as oppressive as the quarreling downstairs. It wasn't a real home, just a house. In spite of the way Adele and Aunt Nettie stuck together there wasn't any real feeling between them. Aunt Nettie sat like the Rock of Gibraltar, wearing everybody down with her bulk and immovability.

She couldn't stand, never escaped. She was a great big, solid, downy, sturdy thing, and she'd still be there, there, Aunt Nettie and her girls.

"And what about her, Christine? She didn't look very cheerful, for Miss Burton and Mr. J. G. Krichbaum. They were joined at the yard by Rev. J. S. Cook, and the graves of the 24 fallen heroes were strewn with the floral offering of the children. It was one of the most impressive, as well as beautiful ceremonies, of the kind we ever witnessed. Who so well suited to this commemorative act as children, the flower of our country?

WARMINSTER — Jonathan Davis, Esq., a well-known and highly-respected citizen of Warminster, died at his residence on Friday last, after a lingering illness. He was at one time Register of Wills of this county, and in 1868 was elected to the office which his demise made vacant, having been re-elected in 1873. Interment in Friends Burying Ground in this place on Monday last.

NEWPORTVILLE — The spelling bees and potato bugs are all the rage at present. There is a bee almost every night in this vicinity. The great success attending that at Union Hall two weeks ago under the auspices of the Literary Society, has induced the members of that organization to have another one on the 11th inst. Four valuable prizes will be given. The following committee has been appointed to make the necessary arrangements: A. VanHorn, J. Crier, D. Harrison, Misses C. Fetters, S. Maitland, and M. Porter.

A serious fire occurred at Eddington on Sunday afternoon last. The barn and tenant house of Jonathan Thomas on the Hummel place was destroyed by fire. It is supposed the fire originated from a cigar or pipe. The barn and its contents consisting of machinery and hay was entirely consumed. The house was protected by water being thrown upon it, but the well of water gave out then it took fire; the household goods were all saved but many damaged in the removal. George Ebert was the tenant.

The balance of the amount needed to finish the Water Works and pay off existing debts was obtained last Friday by the committee appointed for that purpose.

HULMEVILLE

There were 12 tables of pinocle players and three tables of bridge devotees gathered at the card party sponsored by the Men's Club in Grace Church parish house, Friday evening, in addition to a number of "radio" players. Fine prizes were awarded those who scored high. Refreshments of sandwiches and coffee were sold.

Mrs. Annie Soby, who was taken to Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia, last week, following a fall, is being treated for a broken hip.

The Hulmeville Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Joseph O. Canby, Bensalem Township.

CROYDON

Miss Henrietta Kogel entertained last week Misses Janice Jefferies and Julia Houser, Bristol; Mrs. Elwood Courtney and children, Tacony.

Mrs. Anna Winkler will leave this week for Grand Rapids, Mich., to spend the holidays with her brother.

Mrs. Frank Snyder was a guest of relatives in Philadelphia, Saturday.

Mrs. Smith, who makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. James Kennedy, has been very ill for the past month.

Mrs. Anna Britton returned from the hospital last week, where she is convalescing after a serious injury to both ankles.

Cries of "God Bless Him" Ring Out for King Edward

planned to inform the House of Commons this afternoon that the government had never brought pressure to bear on the King at any point in the events of the past five days, but this was seen by observers as a left face or a half-about face.

They pointed out that government newspapers have been demanding an immediate decision, declaring the situation could not continue.

Even today the government spokesman talked of an answer from the King within 48 hours.

The government retreat was seen as caused by a rising of popular feeling for "fair play."

Members of Parliament, the Cabinet and newspapers have been flooded by telegrams and letters along this line, taking sides with King Edward and demanding that he be given time to reach a decision.

Demonstrators parading Downing Street, seat of the inner sanctum of the British government, carrying placards reading, "Our King Must Have Time to Decide," have been cheered regularly by the crowds assembled there since England's most serious constitutional impasse broke with full force upon an amazed public.

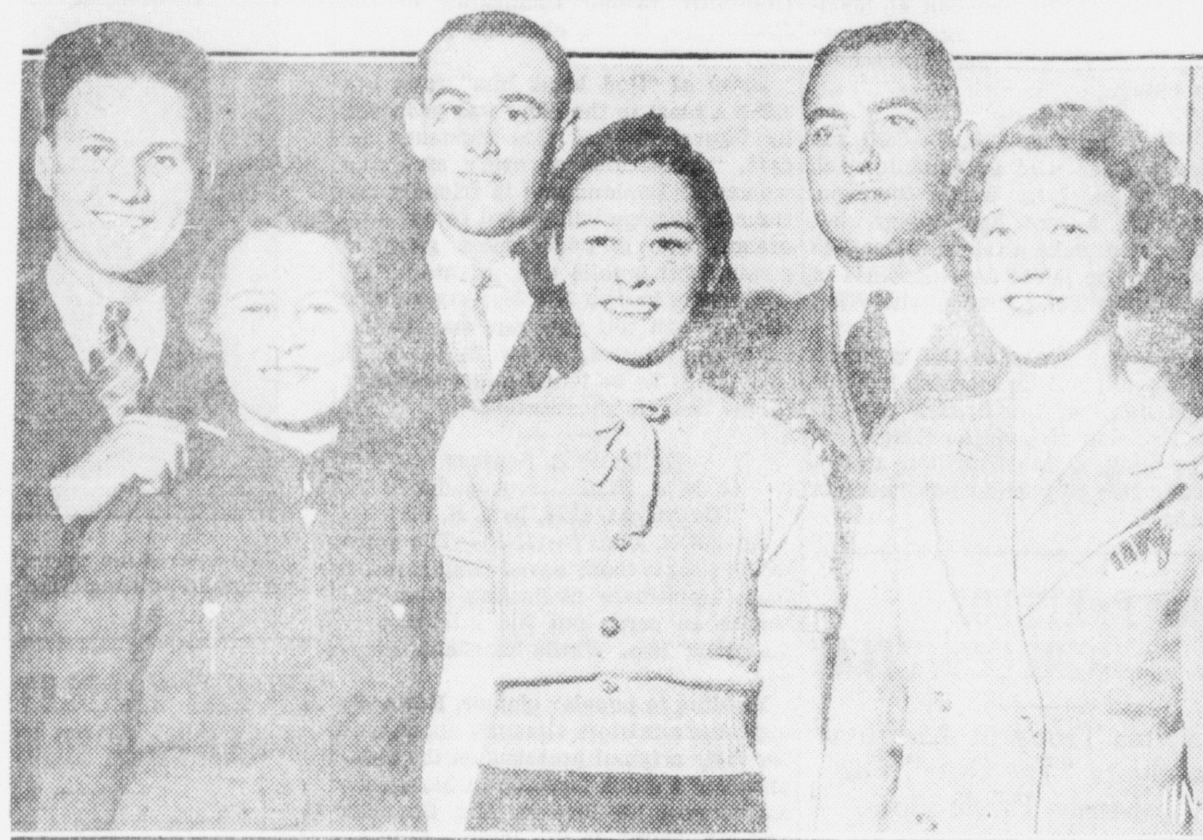

This morning, despite a biting wind, small crowds gathered in Downing street and in front of Buckingham palace even as early as breakfast time. They stood there shivering and watching messengers and automobiles come and go.

One group of men and women tried rudely drawn placards which repeated the now familiar refrain: "We want the King!"

MEMORIAL

MUNICH—(INS)—A memorial to a man who is still alive has been unveiled at Parsberg, a town in the Upper Palatinate. The man is Konstantin Hierl, the Nazi Labor Service Leader and head of some million young German workers.

Nation's Healthiest Boys and Girls

"Dere Santa" ---

YOU, as Santa's representative, are on the lookout for these trustful childish messages. You're watching for the chance lists of "What I'd like" scribbled idly on feminine desk blotters — for a husband's pocketed memorandum on the perfect tobacco pouch or essential trout flies.

Such clues are invaluable in the pleasant, hectic business of Christmas shopping. But—what about the people who don't write them? The inarticulate, grown-up, far away?

Look on certain pages of this newspaper to find all these missing, unwritten letters to Santa Claus.

Let the advertising tell you as clearly as if you heard her voice that Aunt Mabel will exclaim with joy at this particularly new hostess set. That your mother's practical fingers for once are aching to explore the mysteries of that glamorous cosmetics box. That difficult Cousin Will will melt with gratitude before the machine to make his toast without distracting him from his newspaper.

You can trust the advertising to report unfailingly what people all over the country are saying, seeing, wanting at any time of year. And that's only one of its functions. Advertised products are always the best and most reliable purchases, as well as the most welcome gifts.

Vatican Circles Gravely Concerned Over Pope Pius

Pope Pius XI, who died in 1931, was considered the Pontiff's condition very grave, it was learned from an unimpeachable source.

Later Father Gemelli gave out an official statement which clearly indicated the rigid measures being taken to aid the Pope but failed to indicate how grave his condition is considered. The statement said:

"The general condition of the Pope is satisfactory. His blood condition is improving. This is due to the complete rest imposed upon the Pontiff by his personal physician, Dr. Milani. This complete rest must and will continue and will be the prime factor in resolving the present crisis."

"ANCIENT MARINER"

CUTCHOGUE, N. Y. (INS) — A miniature repetition of the "Ancient Mariner" took place on Long Island Sound when John Edwards, 54, of Saybrook Point, Conn., lost both oars of his rowboat and drifted with the Sound's currents for 60 hours before landing here. Edwards stumbled up to the nearest house, in the early morning, moaning for water. A doctor was called and Edwards quickly recovered.

ANDALUSIA GREEN WAVE BATTLES ST. ANN'S XI TO SCORELESS STALEMATE

The large crowd of loyal football fans who braved the rain yesterday afternoon saw one of the finest tilts of the season staged on Landrean's field when the Andalusia Green Wave and the St. Ann's eleven battled to a scoreless stalemate.

Despite the rain and the muddy field the clubs fought toe and nail, neither giving an inch to the other. After sixty minutes of rolling and splashing in the mud, the players were hardly recognized being covered from head to foot with mud. In fact, several times, the players mistook their own players for gladiators of the opposing team and spilled them.

In the number of first downs, the Purple and Gold had the advantage over the Andalusians. Twelve times, a player of Coach Dougherty's team splashed his way to beyond the ten yard marker and Joe Diamanti's team had seven, most of which came in the third quarter.

In the first half the battle was all St. Ann's. The "Saints" opened with an attack which featured "Aussie" Bono cracking the Andalusia line. Time and again Bono would tear through holes opened on the right by Kornstedt and Angelo and on the left by Brown and Profy. But as in other St. Ann's tilts when in a scoring position a fumble took place and Trummer recovered for Andalusia.

The second half saw the St. Ann's eleven with another diversified attack and this time succeeded in reaching the six yard line of the visitors when another fumble took place and again a protégé of Joe Diamanti recovered the pigskin. In the fourth period, the Purple and Gold again threatened and got as far as the twenty yard line of the invaders but the Green Wave was equal to the task and held when necessary.

The third session proved the best of the game for the Andalusians. Starting a sustained march from its own thirty yard line and with "Big Bertha" Schwartz and Lukens knifing their way for consistent gains, the Green Wave reached the nine yard line of the Golden Avalanche. But all their work was fruitless as here the Bristolians braced and held for the necessary number of downs.

"Pete" Bornice kicked out of danger for the time being but with Schwartz again leading the attack and featuring a play which gave him three runners for interference, the boys of Joe Diamanti again threatened to stop an aerial which almost proved disastrous for Phil Carnvale got his right on the ball and had clear sailing ahead of him but as he went to run dropped the oval and Andalusia again had possession of the ball.

A "cuffin" corner kick by Wilkins proved successful and St. Ann's was with its back to the wall on its own yard line. "Pete" Bornice went back to punt formation but it was a fake and on an end run, "Pete" went 5 yards before being stopped. "Ted" Tosti followed with a sweeping end run which was good for eighteen more yards and the "Saints" were out of danger. Bornice threw a quick kick but it was blocked and Andalusia recovered. The ball was in midfield when the tilt ended.

"Pete" Bornice and "Teddie" Tosti gained considerable yardage for St. Ann's around the ends and once "Fankie" Zeffries and "Mummy" Ross took off for good runs while the chief line cracker was Aussie Bono. On the defense the work of Carnvale, Nicols and Kornstedt stood out.

For Andalusia, Schwartz and Lukens did considerable damage to the St. Ann's line with their consistent bucking. Schwartz made the largest gain of the afternoon for his club when he cracked center for twenty-two yards in the final period. On the defense, the playing of Trummer and Roeger stood out.

The wet ball made the attempting of passes very futile. St. Ann's tried out one while Andalusia went into the zone three times. None of the throws were completed.

The tilt closed the season for the St. Ann's team and also proved that he three teams of the lower part of the county, Bristol Recreation, St. Ann's and Andalusia, members of the Bucks County Independent Football League for 1937 are on a par as to playing strength.

HOCKEY TEAM HOLDS INITIAL PRACTICE

The Bristol Hockey Team composed of all local boys held its first practice of the season Tuesday night at the Recreation Center headed by the return of two of last year's competitive squad, Bernie Dennen and Marvin Hutchinson, defense and center men respectively. Among the new players are the two Ritter boys, who are spoken of as grained lightning on skates; "Smitty" McCoy, a hard-fighting player; "Shifty" Sam Leeper; "Roughhouse" Parr; "Fearless" Dick Van Aiken, and "Moonlight" Kempton. There are three other fine boys in "Porkey" Avella, "Reds" Strong and "Bouncing" Bellerby. Many new players unable to attend the session have sent in notice of their desire to try out.

Plans were laid at the meeting to hold the biggest and best skating party ever held on this or any other rink in the county. There will be new skating games and races at this party. It was decided to conduct such on Tuesday night, December 15. With the receipts the team plans to make a tour of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Delaware and return wearing the championship crown of these four states.

The team is in charge of an efficient manager, Eddie O'Boyle, who is entering his seventh consecutive year as a pilot of hockey teams, having been affiliated with two of the best teams in the East including the Garden Rink, in Boston, Mass., and the Hiltonia Rink in Richmond, Va.

A friendship which shakes an empire! Such has been the case in Great Britain where a governmental crisis has been brought about as a result of the friendship of King Edward VIII and Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, former Baltimore belle. While British subjects speculate on the matter, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and the Archbishop of Canterbury are believed to have expressed pointed protests to the king. Other principals involved in the question of whether the twice-divorced Mrs. Simpson will occupy Buckingham Palace as queen, are Queen Mary and the Duke and Duchess of York, next in line to the throne.

I tumble to 'Em-

Buddy,
I can't pay a higher compliment than that.
Girl or cigarette... when I tumble that means I'm for 'em.
Chesterfield's my cigarette. And I'll tell all hands they've got a hearty good taste that makes a sailor happy. And listen, they're milder.
... for the good things a cigarette can give a sailor
I'll sign up with Chesterfields
